25 July - World Embryologist Day

- World Embryologists Day is observed every year on July 25 to recognize the work and contributions of embryologists worldwide.
- Embryologists play an important role in treating infertility and help couples have babies through in vitro fertilization or the IVF process.
- In an IVF clinic, embryologists play a vital role. They are responsible for creating new life outside a woman's body. Embryologists also help in conceiving a baby. They are also known as the caretakers of clients' eggs, sperm, or embryos.
- On July 25, 1978, Louise Joy Brown was the first child to be born through IVF in England. Since then, IVF has emerged as a glimmer of hope for couples who dream of becoming parents, but are struggling with infertility. Therefore, Brown's birthday is recognised as World Embryologist Day.
